Chancellor Named NBA Omega Psi Phi Man of the Year

The Omega Psi Phi men of the National Bar Association, made up of judges and lawyers from throughout the nation, will honor Chancellor Freddie Pitcher, Jr., as “Omega Psi Phi Man of the Year,” Tuesday, August 10, at 8:30 a.m., at the Marriott New Orleans Hotel.

The award will be made at the group’s 19th annual breakfast held in conjunction with the 85th National Bar Association Convention in New Orleans, August 9-13.

Each year a fraternity brother is selected based on his contributions to the legal profession, his work for social justice in the legal profession and community at-large, and his upright comportment, said attorney Clayton A. Graham of Indianapolis, Indiana.

O. T. Wells, Esq., New York, New York; Judge Bruce Weekes, Atlantic City, New Jersey; Judge Fred Bonner, Seattle, Washington; Delano Stewart, Esq., Tampa, Florida; and Graham serve on the breakfast planning committee.

Chancellor Pitcher said, “I am most honored to receive this national honor from my fellow brothers of Omega Psi Phi Fraternity, Inc. I’ve always tried to live and work mindful of our tenets which concern leadership, service, and community. It is especially gratifying to be honored by such a distinctive body of peers and to be honored at home.”
